BUDGET 2024-2025 PROPOSALS

Finance Act 2022-2023 and 2023-2024 had been inserted with some drastic changes that are effecting the real estate sector. Unfortunately, there are no direct pros for this sector in the Act, but there are several cons, mentioned as below.

Status quo regarding Valuation Tables by FBR to be maintained

As real estate markets all over Pakistan are stagnant and a lull has been observed due to which the transactions figures are on a decreasing trend since a couple of years. It is strongly recommended and proposed to Finance ministry not to increase the valuation tables of immovable properties in the coming budget of 2024-2025 and a status quo must be maintained for the future betterment of the real sector.

Deemed rental income tax:

A new Section 7E has been inserted in the Finance Act 2022-2023 and onwards, which introduced a deemed rental income value tax at the rate of 1% for individuals and associations of persons having equal to or more than an aggregate value of Rs25 million of their immovable properties on the basis of the fair market value. This new section 7E is the main culprit and a big hurdle hindering the investment in the real estate sector. It is the utmost demand of the real estate fraternity to revert section 7E in the coming budget 2024-2025.

Enhanced Withholding Tax and Advance Tax

Withholding tax under section 236K has been increased to 3% for filers and 10% for non-filers. Similarly, advance tax (capital gains) under section 236C has been enhanced to 3% for filers and 6% for non-filers. These taxes must be brought down to their previous percentages that is 1% each in order to maximize the number of transactions that are at the lowest levels at present.

Capital Gains Tax on Inherited and Gifted Properties

The Finance Act 2022-2023 and onwards had made inherited and gifted properties liable for capital gain tax. For this purpose, section 4A has been omitted, which means that the purchase price of such properties will be considered as zero, and the sale price will be based on the current FBR valuation. This will result in these properties being subject to 100% capital gain tax, which is a significant burden for heirs and beneficiaries of gifted properties. Section 4A must be included in budget 2024-2025.

Extended Holding Period for Capital Gain Purpose

Regarding open plots, the holding period for the calculations of capital gain tax purposes under section 37(1A) has been increased from four years to six years. This change has affected those who buy properties with the intention of selling them for a profit within a short period. The holding period must be reverted to 4 years as was in the past. While in case of a flat, holding period is two years but for a constructed bungalow the holding period is 4 years. As both flat and constructed bungalow fall in the same category it is requested to minimize the holding period for a bungalow to 2 years too. This step can boost up the construction industry.

Omission of Sub Section (3) Section 236C

Sub section (3) of section 236C had been omitted in the Finance Act 2022-2023 and onwards which means that every immovable property will be chargeable for capital gain tax, irrespective of holding period. This provision is likely to affect property owners who were previously exempted from capital gain tax at completion of their immovable properties holding periods. It is suggested to include sub section (3) of section 236c.

Last but not the least, the Finance Act 2022-2023 and 2023-2024 had introduced several measures that are making havoc with the real estate sector. The cons introduced in the previous budget 2022-2023 and 2023-2024 must be reverted in budget 2024-2025 for the betterment of real estate sector, which is no doubt playing an important part in maximizing the revenues in the exchequer of Pakistan's economy.
